Mountain View County issues another fire ban

County follows lead of the Province as dry conditions in Southern Alberta continue

by Richard Westlund
Review Editor

For the second time this year, Mountain View County has issued a fire ban.

Due to continued dry conditions and extremely high fire hazard levels, the County issued a fire ban that became effective at the end of last month. Fires in the County are banned until further notice. Any fire permits issued by the County are now void and no new permits will be issued until the fire ban has been lifted.

The fire ban does not apply to fires contained in fire reciprocals located in designated camping and recreation areas or fires which are contained in cooking and heating appliances which are fuelled by fluids or gases.

"All citizens are encouraged to take the fire ban seriously and to be alert for potential hazards during this critical period."

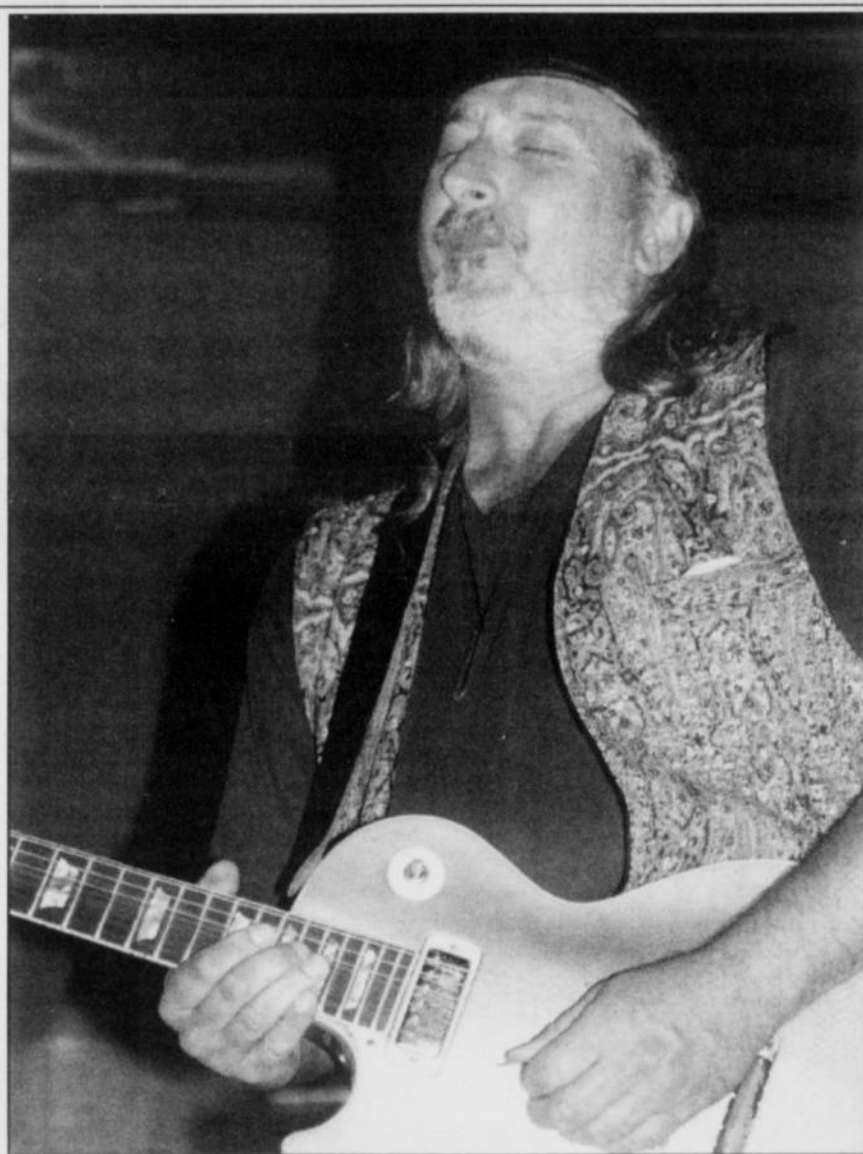

"All citizens are encouraged to take the fire ban seriously and to be alert for potential hazards during this critical period."

Last week the province held a press-conference and expanded their fire ban zone and stated that conditions are so dry that a fire that got out of control would be catastrophic.

Earlier this year the County got tough on unauthorized fires. At their May meeting they set in motion the wheels of a fire by law that now allows $500 penalties assessed for non-compliance. The County needed to pass the bylaw in order to be able to assess penalties to those violating fire bans.

During the first fire ban, County officials found that not everyone was in compliance. This is the first year the County has ever taken it upon itself to issue fire bans.

Restrictions remain in effect for the western portions of the province.

Didsbury streets get a face lift with micro-sealant

by Richard Westlund
Review Editor

The work done to Didsbury's streets over the past two weeks is something new in that they have never seen this type of sealant before.

Tyler Tymchyshyn, Engineer Technologist for the Town of Didsbury, said local company Westcan, who did the recent work on the roads used a micro-sealant to smooth out rough town streets.

"It's something new and we will have to see how it works," he said. "We will see how the residents like it. It will be a few more years before we know everything about the choice."

Tymchyshyn said the sealant will fill in the cracks and give the streets new life. The next step in completing the project will be to paint lines on it.

Work on the painting project had commenced shortly after the road surface was completed, but a breakdown has currently stalled the project. Most of the intersections have been marked but center line and parking spaces still hadn't been completed at the end of last week.

"It was getting bad. There were a fair amount of cracks in the road," said Tymchyshyn adding that the completion of the project will slow down further water deterioration.

"Now we should be getting a lot more life out of the road."

Tymchyshyn said that eventually the street will have to be ripped up and redone but it is not at that stage yet and that the micro-sealant is just a step in making sure Didsbury gets the most out of its roads.

"It looks better than it did and it will save some costs down the road," he said.

There are other projects that will be finished in Town limits before the year is up.

Sixteenth-Street which is currently gravel will be paved and 22nd Ave. east of 14th St. will be overlaid. Work will also be done in the West Heights area.

Tymchyshyn said those projects will be completed by mid-October.

RCMP lay charges after accident

Didsbury RCMP are investigating a single vehicle accident in which a passenger of a Ford Mustang was airlifted by STARS Air Ambulance to Calgary with serious injuries.

The accident occurred at approximately 3:40 am on Monday, September 3, 2001 in the Village of Cremona.

Wade Ashley Kinch, 21, of Cremona was driving his 1990 Red Ford Mustang.

That same vehicle had been reportedly drag racing through the village moments before the accident occurred.

The vehicle had been traveling West on Cremona's Main Street at a high rate of speed when according to a witness it lost control and skidded across Highway 22, coming to rest approximately 60 feet west of the Roadway.

RCMP, the Cremona Fire Department and Mountainview Ambulance were dispatched to the scene.

Mr. Kinch had only minor abrasions, however, his passenger, whose name is not being released was unconscious.

Firefighters had to remove one of the vehicle's doors to get the passenger out.

He was then airlifted by STARS to Foothills Hospital in Calgary with undetermined injuries.

Mr. Kinch was arrested at the scene for Impaired Driving Causing Bodily Harm and taken to the RCMP Detachment in Didsbury.

Alcohol appears to have been a major contributing factor to the accident.

Charges of Impaired Driving Causing Bodily Harm and Dangerous Driving Causing Bodily Harm are pending against Mr. Kinch.

Police are continuing to investigate and are looking for a second vehicle, a purple or black 1986-1994 Ford Mustang which was racing against Mr. Kinch at the time and departed the scene immediately after the accident.

Police are also asking anyone who witnessed the accident to call RCMP in Didsbury at 403-335-3382.

CANCER FUNDRAISING

Participation sought for Terry Fox Run

Organizers are hoping to at least double last year's local numbers of the Terry Fox Run

by Richard Westlund
Review Editor

Organizers of the Terry Fox Run in Didsbury are hoping that they can double the number of participants they had at the event locally last year.

Organizer Marc Aubee believes last year the numbers were between 40 and 60 people. For a town the size of Didsbury he feels that is a low number. He would like to see a figure closer to 150 people.

Last year a total of $4,080.50 was raised locally through the event. Aubee knows that more people would mean more money raised for cancer research.

He said in the final weeks he planned on visiting local schools in hopes of getting more school aged children running the Didsbury route.

He said younger faces were almost absent from last year's event.

Aubee believes the Terry Fox Run is important because it deals with an issue that affects so many different people.

"I don't think there are very many people in our community that haven't been touched by cancer in some way," he said, listing a number of family members that have had ties to the disease.

And family continues to motivate Aubee in his participation of the event.

His mother has been involved in the event for years and Aubee said he is following in her footsteps.

Terry Fox began his Marathon of Hope in 1980 with the simple objective of raising the awareness of all Canadians of the critical need to find a cure for cancer.

His fierce determination resulted in his running an average of 43 kilometres a day for 143 days.

Terry was forced to end his run due to the return of cancer and he died in June 1981.

However, by Feb. 1, 1981, Terry's hope of raising $1 from every Canadian was realized and the Terry Fox Marathon of Hope totalled over $24 million. To date close to $300 million has been raised world-wide and all funds support innovative cancer research.

Last year the Terry Fox Run set a record raising $21.6 million and 1.6 million participants walked, jogged and biked in the event.

While the purpose of the Terry Fox Run is to raise money and promote awareness for cancer research, this year's event will allow participants to have their distance timed in a race format.

Aubee said the event has raised some sponsorship this year in the way of hamburgers and hotdogs after the event.

The five and 10 kilometre routes will start from the Didsbury Memorial Complex on Sept. 16.

Terry Fox during his Marathon of Hope Run.

Terry Fox and his marathon was an inspiration to all Canadians

by Leslie Scrivener
The Toronto Star

September 1, 1980 - it was a dull day in Northern Ontario when Terry Fox ran his last miles.

He had started out strong that morning and felt confident. The road was lined with people shouting, "Don't give up, you can make it!" words that spurred him and lifted his spirits.

But after 18 miles he started coughing and felt a pain in his chest.

Terry knew how to cope with pain. He'd run through it as he always had before; he'd simply keep going until the pain went away.

For 5,565 kilometres, from St. John's, Newfoundland, Canada's eastern most city on the shore of the Atlantic, he'd run through six provinces and now was two-thirds of the way home.

He'd run close to a marathon a day, for 144 days. No mean achievement for an able-runner, an extraordinary feat for an amputee.

Terry's left leg was strong and muscular. His right was a mere stump fitted with an artificial limb made of fibreglass and steel. He'd lost the leg to cancer when he was 18.

He was 22 now, curly haired, good looking, sunburned. He was strong and stubborn. His run, the Marathon of Hope, as he called it, a quixotic adventure across Canada that defied logic and common sense, was his way of repaying a debt.

Terry believed that he had won his fight against cancer, and he wanted to raise money, $1 million perhaps, to fight the disease. There was a second, possibly more important purpose to his marathon: a man is not less because he has lost a leg, indeed, he may be more. Certainly, he showed there were no limits to what an amputee could do.

He changed people's attitude towards the disabled, and he showed that while cancer had claimed his leg, his spirit was unbreakable.

His Marathon of Hope had started as an improbable dream - two friends, one to drive the van, one to run, a ribbon of highway, and the sturdy belief that they could perform a miracle.

He ran through ice storms and summer heat, against bitter winds of such velocity he couldn't move, through fishing villages and Canada's biggest cities. Though he shunned the notion himself, people were calling him a hero. He still saw himself as simple little Terry Fox, from Port Coquitlam, British Columbia, average in everything but determination.

But here, 29 kilometres from Thunder Bay, at the head of Lake Superior, the coughing had stopped, but the dull, blunt pain had not. Neither running nor resting could make it go away.

He saw the people lined up the hill ahead of him. The Ontario Provincial Police cruiser was behind him, red lights flashing in the drizzle, and cheers still surrounded him: "You can make it all the way!"

Terry could not ignore what people said to him. He listened.

"I started to think about those comments. I thought this might be my last mile."

He ran until there were no more people, then he climbed wearily into the van and asked his friend and driver Doug Alward to drive him to a hospital.

It was Rick Hansen who invited Terry to get back into sports and join a wheelchair basketball team. (Rick and Terry were of the same mold; later Rick, paraplegic, would push his wheelchair around the world, and he never failed to give credit to Terry, the friend who inspired him.)

Terry tackled this new challenge with his usual gusto. He made himself strong pushing his wheelchair along the sea wall at Stanley Park in Vancouver. Or he'd find steep mountains and push himself up unruly logging roads. He pushed himself until his hands bled.

Two years after his operation, Terry started a running programme. The first half miles he ran in the dark, so no one could see him. But one of his coaches from junior high, Bob McGill, who had since overcome cancer himself, heard the steady one-two thump of Terry's good leg and the thud of his artificial leg, long before he could see his wobbly frame in the darkness.

Terry trained for 15 months, running 5,085 kilometres, running until his stump was raw and bleeding, running every day for 101 days, until he could run 37 kilometres a day. He took one day off at Christmas, only because his mother asked him.

In Terry's Words

Gander, NF, April 21; 215 miles, 346 km. "It was an exciting day in Gander. People came and lined up and gave me ten, twenty bucks just like that. And that's when I knew the Run had unlimited potential."

Sheet Harbour, NS, May 15; 794 miles, 1,278 kilometres. After a reception where Terry ran with some school children, he wrote "When I ran with the kids I really burned it just to show them how fast I could go. They were tired and puffing. All right!"

Highway 2, west of Moncton, NB, May 29, 1,159 miles, 1,865 kilometres. "We learned that St. John would have nothing organized for us. I try so hard and then get let down. I am going to run right down this city's main street. Doug is going to follow and honk. We will be rebels, we will stir up noise. People will know Terry Fox ran out of his way to St. John for a reason."

Thunder Bay, ON, Sept. 1; 3,339 miles, 5,153 kilometres. "People were still lining the streets saying to me, 'Keep going, you can do it, you can make it, we are all behind you.' You don't hear that and have it go in one ear and out the other, for me anyways ... There was a camera crew waiting at the three-quarter mile point to film me. I don't think they realized they filmed my last mile ... people were still saying, 'You can make it all the way Terry'. I started to think about those comments in that mile too. Yeah, I thought, this might be my last one."

OPINIONS EDITORIAL

Terry Fox Run

Richard WESTLUND

One of Canada's biggest icons is Terry Fox. His courage during the Marathon of Hope 21 years ago is one of the defining points of Canadian history. His goal was to raise $22 million for cancer research and today close to $300 million has been raised under his name.

In the past few years the numbers for the run in Didsbury have been low and organizers are hoping to turn that around this year with more runners. Organizers would like to at least double the total amount of runners in the immediate area and there is no reason why the people of Didsbury can't absolutely shatter last year's mark of $4,080.50.

If you are unable to run, donate to the cause. If you haven't been canvassed and want to give, sign my pledge sheet at the Didsbury Review office. In an attempt to raise more money this year the editorial staff at the Olds Albertan, Carstairs Courier and Didsbury Review have issued challenges to each other to see who can raise the most money for the event.

And I think that's what Terry Fox would like to see. His run was for cancer but it was also a lesson about becoming involved in a cause and was a challenge to people to step forward and be passionate about something. While Terry Fox was on the road small towns along the route took it upon themselves to raise a large amount of money for the cause. Most donated more than the one dollar per capita formula Terry was trying to achieve.

Terry didn't want people to think he was doing the run for himself. There was a bigger reason for the journey. He didn't feel like he was the special one.

"That's the thing about cancer. I'm not the only one. It happens all the time to people. I'm not special. This just intensifies what I did. It gives it more meaning. It'll inspire more people ... I just wish people would realize that anything is possible if you try. When I started this run I said that if we all gave a dollar we would have $22 million for cancer research, and I don't care, man, there's no reason that isn't possible. No reason."

- Terry Fox

Wonderings of the heart The Valley of Baca

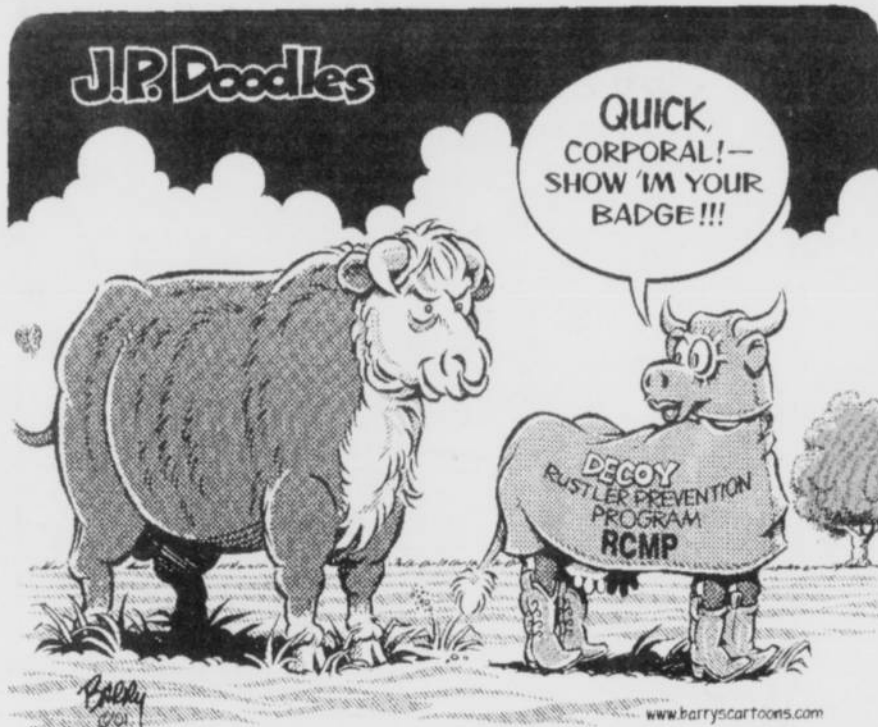

We have, mostly, heard the expression "Those who passed through the Valley of Baca make it a well". A modern everyday analogy might read "They who receive a lemon make lemonade." These lines are easily read and heard, but much more difficult to put into practice.

There are times in all our lives when we seem to go through "a dry time," a testing time, sometimes a more than we can seemingly bear time.

When these difficult times come, when they present themselves in our lives it is often hard to see beyond them: to be able to focus on the good that can eventually come out of them. We can never see the end from the beginning.

It is especially true during these times, how much we need and rely on one another; do we feel safe and at liberty to ask for help when we most need it, or do we feel we need to try and go it alone? Others may think we are weak!! We need the courage to admit our need for help over a hump, someone to show us or gently lead us in a more healthy and constructive way.

We are family, we all need help at times in one way or another and we all need encouragement. Let's be there for one another.

EDITORIAL

Alberta already "shares" generously with other provinces

Last week Liberal Cabinet Ministers came to Edmonton to announce that Alberta is getting a little back from the $7 billion per year which Alberta pays to be part of Canada.

HRDC Minister Jane Stewart gave out a cool million dollars for the "establishment of a sector council for the upstream oil and gas industry" to address skills and labour shortages in the industry.

Transport Minister David Collenette and Justice Minister Anne McLellan teamed with Alberta to announce $92.4 million for highway improvements. International Cooperation Minister Maria Minna opened a new regional CIDA office. As well we saw $120 million for a National Institute of Nanotechnology split between Alberta and the federal government.

To be fair, some of these initiatives, like highways, are worthy.

But after a read through all the news releases from the "Alberta tour", less than half tell us where the money comes from. Those that do state: "funding for this project was provided in the February 2000 budget and is therefore built into the existing framework."

But fewer and fewer government releases now contain this phrase.

This is trouble for several reasons. To start, we have not had a full-blown budget in this country for more than twenty months. Government, as we've seen this week, is now conducted by press conference and photo op while the cameras roll. Parliamentary debate, why bother?

But with this approach, the federal cash register tape rolls as well. Just last week, Finance Minister Paul Martin sounded the alarm that new federal programs could be in jeopardy. This is a double-edged sword to be sure. While the prospect of having Ottawa's reported $16 billion innovation agenda put on hold or scaled back is to be welcomed from a taxpayer point of view, the federal government's spending binge continues on other fronts.

Moreover, since the Finance Minister has not seen fit to inform us about the costs of the government's Throne Speech promises (14 new initiatives) or much of this "new" spending, chances of future tax cuts are also imperiled.

Combine this secrecy with recent market signals and Canadians should be concerned. The Federal Open Market Committee (FOMC) of the U.S. Federal Reserve Board again cut its target for federal funds rate (the prime rate) by another 25 basis points this week. That's seven rate cuts totaling 300 basis points over eight months trying to kickstart a stubbornly sagging U.S. economy. And the Bank of Canada has cut its prime rate by 150 points over five months, with more to come no doubt.

As Alberta economist Ken Boesenkool points out, the C.D. Howe Institute calculates that for each tax dollar raised by Ottawa, Albertans and Ontarians pay about $1.35 and residents of B.C. pay just over a dollar. The rest of Canada pays about 67 cents.

All of this leads us inevitably to the Prime Minister's speech in Edmonton last week where he said Albertans (could Ontario and B.C. be next?) should "share" their wealth with the rest of the country. But we already do.

Hopefully, the Liberals understand the difference between sharing and confiscating. The former is voluntary and noble; the latter is neither.

Fate of water and wilderness should stay out of Industry's hands

Dear Editor,

A landmark decision regarding the future of industrial logging in Kananaskis Country went virtually unnoticed last week. Spray Lake Sawmills of Cochrane was granted a Forest Management Agreement (FMA) for 50% of the Kananaskis resulting in most of the eastern and southern portions now being committed to the company's unsustainable clearcutting practices. The (FMA) announcement, made July 23, was coupled with the announcement of three new park areas in the Kananaskis none of which protect any substantial amount of the region's ecologically sensitive critical wildlife zones. The (FMA) will have negative implications for wildlife habitat, and for anyone who uses the Kananaskis for recreational or hunting purposes.

Communities dependent on the Kananaskis numerous watersheds (including Calgary, Turner Valley, Black Diamond, High River and Okotoks) will now have to question their water security, while the establishment of any further protected areas in the Kananaskis will require the public to financially compensate Spray Lake Sawmills for land they once owned.

Premier Klein made a commitment in 1999 to complete a thorough planning process for the Kananaskis using a Regional Sustainable Development Strategy, and we want him to keep his promise before he puts the fate of our water and wildlife in the hands of industry. It doesn't get much closer to home, so please make your voice heard on this issue.

READING AND WRITING

Local man overcomes illiteracy and inspires others

by Chris Puglia

George Somerville stood before a small crowd last week during an open house on family and adult literacy and proclaimed "I am illiterate."

The proclamation wasn't one of shame, or remorse, it was exclaimed with pride, not pride over his self professed disability, but how he has struggled to overcome it.

Somerville's voice and actions swelled with emotion and passion as he emphatically explained his life struggles, battling not only his own illiteracy, but the attitudes of society.

"When I was young I was placed in front of my peers on a stool in a pointed red hat," says Somerville who is in his 60s. "I was illiterate and my son is illiterate because my mom and my wife decided to have a party when they learned they were going to have a baby."

Somerville suffers from a condition that is referred to as Fetal Alcohol Affects, similar to Fetal Alcohol Syndrome, but without the physical defects. FAA damaged the left side of Somerville's brain causing dyslexia and other learning disabilities. Through his childhood and his life Somerville says he has had to face the challenges of living in a society that allows people like him to fall through the cracks.

"They limit our ability because they don't have the time to allow us to express what we are deep inside, they only see what we are on the surface," said Somerville.

"We have as many smarts and as many brains, in fact more, because Einstein was illiterate."

Reaching deep inside, Somerville was able to bring to the surface his potential for learning, a trait that he says lies inside every person, a trait he was able to tap and exploit to its fullest.

Not only does Somerville read, but when he began to feel the passion and determination for learning at 25, he fought around his disability and worked his way, not only through high school, but all the way to a full doctorate from the Oxford Graduate School in Tennessee, affiliated with the world renowned Oxford University in England.

George Somerville has overcome illiteracy and has gone on to receive an Oxford education.

"Once I began to feel the energy that is present in learning new things it spurred me on. Once I realized I could learn without people mocking me it became an enrichment thing," said Somerville. "It took me 40 years to learn something that you could probably learn in 12."

Despite all those achievements, however, Somerville still struggles to gain the respect of his peers and he continues to struggle with his disability, saying that he is still, in a way, illiterate.

"I can understand reading and I can comprehend reading, but the ability to formalize those thoughts and put those thoughts down on paper takes a lot of work," says Somerville. But the fact that through hard work he can accomplish those things brings a sense of pride.

"I think I am proud of the fact that I am able to learn like those who are normal, it's just that it takes longer."

His life experience has also instilled Somerville with a sense of responsibility to help people like him, one of the reasons he now tutors adult literacy through Project Read Soon in Olds.

"My responsibility as a tutor is to convince those who think they are dumb to come to believe in who they are," said Somerville.

"I want to be able to write and assist those who have similar handicaps," adds Somerville who recognizes that goal as a challenge because of societal structure.

"We're all classed, then in every particular class there is a barrier which almost represents a wall that can't be broken."

In Somerville's case he says at first his barrier was his learning disability, and now, although he has overcome that obstacle, he finds himself facing another barrier, his age.

"I claim equality provided they (the academic community) are willing to act as peers and not suppress me because of my age," he says.

It is that categorical nature of society he says that threatens to leave many people with learning disabilities out in the cold, because society will pass them by.

"It is something we need to break down, together we become one."

"So where is the class distinction when you become one?"

This was the first time that Somerville had ever shared his story with the public and he did so with confidence, poise and dramatic flare.

"I found myself caught up with the passion of the moment and I looked around and saw my student there and knew he felt the same way," said Somerville.

Local programs combating illiteracy throughout the County

by Chris Puglia

It's hard for those of us who pick up a book and read its contents with ease to understand what it is like to be unable to understand a single word, never mind an entire sentence.

The frustration that comes in not being able to communicate your thoughts on paper or learn the way others do because the reality is you are illiterate.

It sounds like a problem of third world nations, but the truth is it is a harsh reality world wide including right here at home in Alberta. It is staggering that more than 480,000 Albertans have problems with literacy that include difficulty reading common, everyday materials, or understanding writing and/or numbers. In fact 82,000 Albertans lack the reading skills necessary to do basic tasks like reading a bus map, a recipe, or even reading a newspaper article, like the one you are reading now.

If you are thinking that the problem is restricted to a large immigrant population that exists in Alberta and Canada as a whole, you'd be wrong. In fact 45 per cent of people with literacy problems were born in Canada and there is actually a higher achievement of literacy skill improvement among the immigrant population than there is among native Canadians.

The problem is so extensive that the few literacy programs that exist in the province are struggling to keep up and over 5,000 people are currently on waiting lists to get into some kind of literacy program.

That is one of the reasons that Mountain View County is fortunate to have a number of local programs focusing on early literacy, family literacy and adult literacy.

"Part of the Alberta Advantage is our highly educated work force and part of that advantage is keeping our society well educated."

- Richard Marz, MLA

Project Read Soon, Mountain View Society for Life Long Learning and Mountain View Family Literacy, housed in Olds, serve the county in a number of positive capacities.

Whether you want to give your child the best start for their academic career by encouraging them to read, you want to further your education, or you are an adult who needs assistance with their literacy skills or has English as a second language, these programs can help.

These three programs provide opportunities to a variety of people and during an open house held last week for the three programs some of the public had an opportunity to learn what those opportunities are.

Among the dignitaries invited were MLA Richard Marz, who represented one of the primary sources of funding for the programs, the provincial government.

Marz commended the programs as important aspects to Alberta's success nationally and globally.

"Part of the Alberta Advantage is our highly educated work force and part of that advantage is keeping our society well educated," said Marz.

Improved literacy skills are extremely important from a business and workforce perspective literacy problems cost employers in Canada nearly $10 million annually.

All of the literacy programs offered through Mountain View Family Literacy and Project Read Soon are offered free of charge and they can assist in not only creating better literacy but making reading enjoyable.

New this fall is the Building Blocks Program offered through Mountain View Family Literacy. The program is being made available to the communities of Carstairs, Didsbury, Cremona and surrounding areas exclusively because the funding for the program has been provided by Health Authority 5.

The program is designed to help child literacy skills by teaching parents how to make reading an enjoyable experience for their children. The program is open to parents with children aged infant to 12 years. The new program will compliment the other early and family literacy programs that assist new immigrants, individuals with English as a second language, families with newborns, children of various ages and a variety of other situations.

For more information on the programs in your area or what literacy program is best suited to help your needs contact 556-3045 for more information.

Focus on the Family

QUESTION: Can boys and girls be taught to treat each other with respect? That seems like a tough assignment.

DR. DOBSON: They certainly can! Young people are naturally more sensitive and empathetic than adults. Their viciousness is a learned response, resulting from the highly competitive and hostile world in which they live — a world we have allowed to develop. They are destructive to the weak and lowly because we adults haven't bothered to teach them to "feel" for one another. One of the values children cherish most is justice.

They are, on the other hand, uneasy in a world of injustice and abuse. Therefore, when we teach children respect for others by insisting on civility in our classrooms, we're laying a foundation for human kindness in the world of adulthood to come. It is a fundamental attitude that should be taught in every classroom and every home.

QUESTION: Do you feel that there is a kind of "blindness" that can occur when a victim of an affair denies the truth? I seemed to experience this when my husband was fooling around with my best friend. The affair went on for two years before I could acknowledge it to myself. But why would I deny the truth? Why do victims "choose" to be blind?

DR. DOBSON: That psychological process is called denial, and it is designed to protect the mind from an unacceptable thought or reality. Once a person admits to himself or herself that a beloved spouse has been unfaithful, then he or she is obligated to deal with that circumstance.

The extremely painful experiences of grief, anxiety and insomnia become inevitable once the truth has been faced. Furthermore, the injured person fears that a confrontation with the unfaithful partner might drive the spouse into the arms of the new lover. Given these concerns, the person consciously or unconsciously chooses not to notice the affair in the hope that it will blow over and be forgotten. Obviously, there is ample motivation for a vulnerable person to deny what the eyes are seeing. When the evidence of unfaithfulness becomes overwhelming, a man or woman will sometimes "ask" the guilty spouse to assist with the denial. This is done by making accusations in the hope of being proven wrong. For example, a wife will say, "Are you and Donna seeing each other?" "No, I've told you a thousand times that nothing is going on," he lies. "But where were you until 2 o'clock this morning?" "I had car trouble. Now will you get off my back?" This wife knows her husband's story is phony, but she continually asks him to lie to her. And interestingly, she does not feel obligated to "blow the whistle" on him until he admits his involvement ... which may never happen.

These tacit agreements help her maintain the illusion that all is well, and provides a permissive environment in which the husband can play around. Denial has many applications and uses in human experience. It will permit a woman to ignore a suspicious lump in her breast, or the drugs in her son's bedroom, or the debt that the family is accumulating.

Through this process the mind is protected for a time, but it often permits even greater disasters to gain a foothold in our lives.

QUESTION: Is depression more common among men or women?

DR. DOBSON: Depression occurs in both sexes but is less frequent in men. It is also more crisis-oriented. In other words, men get depressed over specific problems, such as a business setback or an illness.

Typically, however, they are less likely to experience the vague, generalized, almost indefinable feeling of discouragement that some women encounter on a regular basis.

Even a cloudy day may be enough to bring on a physical and emotional slowdown, known as the blahs, for those who are particularly vulnerable to depression. That kind of emotional fluctuation is more common in women.

Entertainment Night Coming to Westglen Middle School later this month

Glenda Hunsperger

There won't be a shortage of entertainment in and around Didsbury this fall.

Thanks to the organizational work of Alpha Promotions, there will be little cause to wander far to find great performances like the one happening at Westglen School Friday, September 21st.

That's the day Alpha Promotions will be presenting three attraction: The Wildrose Harmonizers, B.R.A.S.S., and violinist Jim Adamschick.

"The Wildrose Harmonizers are a group of about 22 men from Red Deer who have been working together for some time and who really have fun with what they do. B.R.A.S.S. is a barbershop quartet out of Calgary - again very well known and respected.

The there's the fiddling talents of Jim Adamschick who many may recognize as one of Didsbury's great local talents. He's also been playing for many years and for many different occasions," says Alpha Promotions Founder Glenda Hunsperger.

Hunsperger intends to dedicate a percentage of each performance she books to Redeemer Lutheran Church of which she is a member. "It's just something I love to do...I love to organize and there's just so many talented people and talented groups out there...it really is a pleasure for me to be doing this."

Next up on Alpha Promotions calendar will be a special "Dessert Theatre" coming sometime in November.

Anyone wishing to purchase tickets for the Entertainment Night at Westglen School can do so at the door on the evening of the performance or by dropping by any of the following local merchants: Didsbury Drugs, Ron's Automotive Repair, Derksen Meat Processing, Cut 'N Loose Hair Design, Didsbury Municipal Library, and the 2A Gas and Laundromat in Carstairs. Tickets are $10.00/person and include entertainment and dessert refreshments.

Water Valley residents actively helping to find a cure for cancer

This Sunday communities dotting the map across Canada and throughout North America will attract participants to the annual Terry Fox Run. Not the least among them will be that of Water Valley.

"We've been having the run here for 10 years or better," says Co-organizer Mary Thomson. "It's really well attended and supported. Last year we had 42 participants with $4000.00 in pledges...they come from all over - Cremona, Water Valley, even Calgary to take part. It's really great to see such an active interest."

The scenic route organizers chose for the run includes a portion near the Golf Course and along low traffic tree line districts. "It's a 10 km course, but you don't have to do it all. The important thing is that you participate. We've had people that walk, run, push strollers, pull wagon loads of kids, even horseback ride. There's really no limit as to what kind of activity you choose to do."

An added incentive for participants this year will once again include a T-shirt draw. "This worked really well last year," says Thomson. "We attended a workshop in Red Deer about the Terry Fox Run and learned of some creative ways to add interest and participation in the event. Having local businesses sponsor a T-shirt for the draw was one way they mentioned, so we decided to give it a try."

Anyone wishing to participate in the Terry Fox Run in Water Valley can do so by showing up at the Water Valley Community Centre this Sunday at 1:00 pm. All proceeds go towards Cancer Research.

Didsbury's St. Cyprian's Church welcomes new Reverend to community

Rev. Bob Bettson

It's only been a week since Rev. Bob Bettson and his wife Coline moved to Didsbury and already the community feels like home. "It's really been remarkable," says Rev. Bettson. "The reception we've received since we got here has been so warm & friendly. Some of the parishioners have already been by to greet us and have even brought us baked goods."

The Bettsons responded to the call they received from the Calgary Diocese (where he had applied to) over the summer. Although he and his wife were both living in Toronto at the time. Moving out west did not provide any geographical dilemmas for the Bettsons. "I actually lived in Calgary myself between 1971 and 1985," says Rev. Bettson. "...I was working as a religion writer for the Calgary Herald at the time as well as another privately owned religious publication for a number of years as well." After compiling information for his articles over the course of 11 years Rev. Bettson decided to put some of the information and experience he had gained to good use at the University of Toronto's Trinity College.

"The three-year program there was just excellent," explains Rev. Bettson. "...it involved both academic and practical work experience both in a parish and at a hospital."

This December marks a meaningful milestone for the Bettsons with the official ordination of Bob Bettson into the Anglican Church as a priest.

"I am a Deacon in charge right now which basically means I can do everything a regular Anglican clergy could do as head of a parish but celebrate communion." The ordination service will be performed by a Bishop from Calgary. "I'm really looking forward to serving this congregation and continuing to witness its growth over the next few years."

Carpet Bowling offers camaraderie and old-fashioned friendly competition

Avid lawn bowlers need not stow away their skills - and equipment - for the season just yet.

Beginning next month, the Didsbury 5-0 Club will once again be offering Carpet Bowling.

Carpet Bowling, for those who may be unaware, offers nearly identical game strategies as lawn bowling, but is available indoors. "Now that our evenings are getting a bit cooler, it's nice to be able to move the game inside to a heated facility," says organizer Walter Cook. "...all that's really required are soft soled shoes or slippers. We supply the balls and there's experienced players on hand if someone is new to the game and needs help getting started."

Cook says Carpet Bowling has been somewhat of a long-standing tradition at the 5-0 Club and over the years many friendships (and friendly competitions) have taken place. "We have up to three different matches taking place at any one time with about 40 people participating in 10, 4-person teams," comments

Cook. "...each year we also manage to get together with teams from Cremona or Sundre." Carpet Bowling is offered at the 5-0 Club Wednesday afternoons at 3:30 pm and Friday mornings at 9:30 am and 10:30 am beginning the first week of October. The fee is $15.00 per person which goes towards the rental of the facility.

Elks and Fire Department to host charity ball tournament this weekend

Terry Stevenson, Captain of the Didsbury Fire Department

At least four teams of ball players will be crossing their fingers in hopes of good weather this weekend. That's when the Didsbury Fire Department will be joining forces with the local Elks Chapter to host their first annual mixed slow-pitch tournament.

Fire Captain Terry Stevenson says while registration into the Tourney has been slow to start, he's still hopeful to have a few more teams sign up before game time Friday night. "We're open to anyone with a team that might be interested in playing," says

Stevenson. "All proceeds from the $250 registration fee will go to the Elks who in turn will be donating back to the fire department towards the purchase of a new rescue vehicle. Anyone interested in finding out more information about the tournament, or to register a team, can contact Stevenson at 335-3838.

Tournament action will be held at the ball diamonds closest to the Westglen School this Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

AQUATIC CENTRE

Pool shuts down in September for annual maintenance

The Didsbury Aquatic Centre will once again close for its annual maintenance shutdown beginning Tuesday, September 4, 2001. Many plans are underway for a busy maintenance period and major projects will include resurfacing the existing flooring on the deck in the spectator area, in the hallway and family changerooms and staffroom. This new surface is partially funded by a Community Board Lottery Grant!

During shutdown, the waterslide metal support structure will be given attention in the rusted areas of the metal. Grinding, priming and epoxy coating will enhance the appearance of the metal structure and deter future rusting. The facility will be painted, as well, and the counter tops will be replaced in changerooms. The aquatic center undergoes major maintenance every September, this year being an exception of shutdown for three weeks rather than the normal two weeks. This extra week is scheduled to allow more time for the waterslide repainting project and to accommodate for the decking to dry properly following its application. A new fall schedule is ready to pick up at the aquatic center and includes a full slate of fitness classes, first aid classes, preschool, AquaQuest and advanced swimming lessons.

CANADIAN FOODGRAINS BANK

Local farmers pull together to feed the world

Mary Thompson, Alberta/B.C. Coordinator of the Canadian Foodgrains Bank looks on while a combine helps remove the crop from Dave Epp's field.

Foodgrains Bank project surviving a drought year

by Richard Westlund
Review Editor

It is unlikely that farmers who are volunteering their time and crop will ever see the difference they are making on the other side of the world.

It is just as unlikely that people who benefit from such a program as the Foodgrains Bank would ever meet the farmers who grew it.

But despite the distances, lack of presence, and this year, drought, farmers once again have come together to help harvest 80 acres of barley at Dave Epp's farm.

Last Thursday, five combines and approximately 15 volunteers hit the field to harvest land that will go towards the Canadian Foodgrains Bank.

"I am here for the Foodbank. I think it is a worthwhile cause," said Ron Hildebrandt, a local area farmer who has helped out in the harvesting of the crop since it moved to Epp's land three years ago.

"It is an opportunity for farmers in Western Canada to help third world people and it is nice to be able to do something as a community.

"Sometimes we take food for granted," said Hildebrandt.

In the dust being created by the combines and trucks collecting the barley stood Mary Thompson, Alberta/B.C. Coordinator of the Canadian Foodgrains Bank who watched and rode along in a combine as the crop came off the field.

"I have been to Ethiopia and Kenya and when you realize how much we have to eat you realize that you only have to share a little bit," she said with the constant humming of combines, grain trucks and augers in the background.

It is a success story that is echoing across the country. Recently in Tisdale, Saskatchewan, 10,000 metric tonnes of yellow peas were shipped to Vancouver where they embarked on a journey to North Korea. In terms of dollars, it was a $3 million shipment.

The peas will feed children in orphanages and hospitals and is estimated to feed 776,000 people for 11 months.

"Without proper nutrition

About 15 volunteers chipped in at the local Foodgrains project.

and protein children of North Korea are stunted physically and mentally. They are the future of their country," said Thompson.

Thompson said it takes so little to feed a lot of people in poorer places in the world. One hundred dollars will feed a family of five for three months and a tonne of wheat will feed 2,500 people for one day.

While participation has been consistent this year, drought across the country means the Canadian Foodgrains Bank will not meet its targets this year. Thompson said most crops that are donated to the cause are only reaching 50 to 60 per cent yields. That means increased participation in the program is critical, said Thompson, who is urging people to donate in any capacity that they can.

In addition to feeding the world another aspect which has made the program a successful one is the fact that communities spend time together in assisting a good cause.

Just like on Epp's farm, farmers are coming together all over the country to make the effort work. A world record was set in Westlock when 65 combines harvested a quarter section of wheat in under 15 minutes.

"It builds a sense of community. It's still about people that get caught up in the excitement of the harvest and about making a difference in someone's life."

Canadian Foodgrains Bank

is a Christian-based food aid and development organization that collects donations of grain, cash and other agricultural commodities for distribution to the world's hungry.

It is owned by 13 Canadian church members who work with international partners to ensure food gets to where it is intended to go.

The Foodgrains Bank manages a centralized food/grain collection system on behalf of its member churches, negotiates master agreements with CIDA, the Canadian Wheat Board and other organizations, manages procurement and shipping for members, provides expert advice and services to members on food programming, and engages in policy and development education activities related to hunger and food security.

If you are interested in making a donation you can do so at the Canadian Foodgrains Bank's website at www.foodgrainsbank.ca. Most elevators also accept and keep track of donations from farmers.

40 per cent of Alberta's crop in now harvested

Another great week of harvest weather right across the province allowed farmers to harvest 40 percent of the crop, up from 23 percent last week and 21 percent a year ago. Combining is in the home stretch in the south and just starting in the Peace. In the southern part of the province, in the Bow Island, Foremost, and Dunmore areas, 81 percent of the hard red spring wheat and 89 percent of the 6-row barley crops have been harvested. Further west in the Barons, Fort Macleod, Stirling and Tempest areas, 94 percent of the wheat and barley crops are in the bin. Moving into the Calgary area, the harvesting of wheat is 71 percent complete while 62 percent of the 2-row barley crops are off the fields. Combining of canola is 51 percent complete with reports from the Standard area of yields in the 1 to 5 bushel range due to extremely dry conditions.

Over 55 percent of the hard red spring wheat crop in the central region has been combined. Half of this season's barley crop is also in the bin along with a third of the canola crop. Agricore staff at Viking report crops coming off in very good condition and so far, quality is also very good. Another ten days of good weather and harvest in the Viking area will be about complete. Harvest is nicely underway in the Legacy Junction reporting area however, area farmers were delayed by spotty showers over the weekend.

The Mountain View Colts have started working out for the upcoming season at the new Arena in Carstairs. The Colts, who played all of their games at home in Didsbury last year, will play half in Carstairs in the upcoming campaign.

Aqua Jets rule the pool at regional swim meet

On August 11th and 12th, several AquaJets' swimmers competed at the "Region E" regional swim meet held at the Lindsay Park Sports Center in Calgary.

Thirteen teams from the Region gathered together to compete for a berth at the Provincial meet.

The Didsbury team was represented by twenty talented swimmers and they certainly let the competition know that they were a team to be dealt with.

Coaches Lynne Chernow and Michael Johnson were very proud of the way all the swimmers swam.

Many swimmers swam to best times and that means improvements from all meets the competed in over the summer. All Didsbury AquaJets' swimmers who competed at the Regional meet qualified to go onto Provincials by placing first or second in their respective events, or, they were wildcarded by claiming four of the fastest times in the Province after the top 12 swimmers from all regions across Alberta were given their reserved lanes. Results of the "Region

E" meet are as follows:

Berina Traub 50 free-8, 25 fly-5, 25 back-7.

OBITUARIES

Miller - Wilfred Ernest Miller passed away at Olds Hospital August 24, 2001 at age 72. Wilf was born at Didsbury February 14, 1929 and raised mostly in the Didsbury district. He married Joyce Weastell in 1953 and together they raised their three children and farmed north of Didsbury. Wilf enjoyed farming but his true calling was to work with horses. He began training horses at an early age and over the years has trained numerous breeds for many purposes including saddle, show, roping, racing, teams, hitches and his real passion standard racing. Some of Wilf's other interests were riding saddle broncs, calling square dances, trail riding, shoeing horses and building a variety of farm and horse equipment. He also enjoyed singing and played the piano, guitar, banjo and harmonica by ear. Wilf was predeceased by grandson Kyle Sutherland in 1995 and daughter Kathy Robertson in 1999. Wilf will always be lovingly remembered by his wife Joyce Miller, son-in-law Doug Robertson, son Doug (Carol) Miller, daughter Shauna (Rob) Sutherland and his cherished grandchildren Michael, Erin, Christina, Daniel, Ryan, Nicole, Kimberly and Quinn. He is also survived by sisters Ruth (Murray) Anderson, Thelma (Rube) Mente, twin sister Win Wallace, brothers Lorne (Helen) Miller, Wayne (Wanda) Miller, Cliff (Eileen) Miller and numerous nieces and nephews. A memorial service was held at Knox United Church in Didsbury on August 30, 2001. May Wilf's integrity, humour and strength of spirit carry on within us all. If friends so desire, memorial tributes in memory of Wilf may be made to the Tom Baker Cancer Centre, 1331-29 St. N.W., Calgary, AB. T2N 4N2 or The Alberta Children's Hospital, 1820 Richmond Road S.W., Calgary, AB. T2T 5C7.

Mixed Slo-pitch league wraps up in Didsbury

by Tracy Smith

The Didsbury Mixed Slowpitch League has now wrapped up for another year. It was a great season of ball and all the teams did very well and seemed to have fun. Our league consisted of eight teams - Whiskey Jacks, Dirty Mothers, Leftovers, Slammers, Razors, Sun Devils, Raiders and the Slambucas.

Our league began May 8th and ended with playoffs

August 28th. The two final teams were the Dirty Mothers and the Slambucas with the Dirty Mothers taking the win. The players of these two hard working teams are as follows: Dirty Mothers & others: Ryan Foley, Jason Hallet, R'nee Gole, Dan Gole, Janet Gole, Brett Gole, Rhonda Hunter, Val Facey - scorekeeper, Shelia Milne, Penny Claize, Audrey Campbell, Chris Claize, Brian Facey, Kelly McKinnon, Karen Chernow, Dani Penny, Kelly Hnidy, and Monique Engel.

Slambucas: George Parkin, Brian Papke, Cam Hood, Darcy Pride, Kevin Fischer, Patty Linderman, Sue Gole, Linda Brander, Shannon Fischer, Ian Brander, Nakia Graham, Jamie McKenzie, and Shelley Flynn.

As the season comes to a close besides a few ball tournaments that the teams may be competing in, it was a great season by all and great weather. As we are preparing for next season we are always looking for more teams to participate in the fun.
